One man perhaps was injured fatally and eight were hurt at 7 o'clock this morning, when an auto truck, owned by Roy Rist, grocer at Dawson, and rented by Mrs. Sarah B. Cochran for the transportation of workmen engaged in the construction of her magnificent mansion in St. James Park, crashed down the hillside near Dawson Foundry.

LOUIS BERRY, all bruised and perhaps hurt internally.

The machine, weighing about two tons, struck a fill in the road while going at fair speed, and turned turtle. The lives of the nine men perhaps were saved by the covered body of the auto. As the heavy truck rapidly rolled down the hill, the occupants were hurtled like peas in a pod. Gaining momentum, the truck crashed over the bank and landed at the edge of the Yough river.

Stunned, bruised and injured the men lay a few moments at the river brink. Then those less hurt attended the more seriously injured. Word was sent to Dawson. Doctor J. Harry Bell rushed to the scene. The injured were removed to the Dawson Hotel, where they received medical attention.

All the men, excepting Ober, were of Pittsburg. Ober lives in Dawson. The truck, valued at $3,000, was wrecked beyond repair. The drop from the road to the river's edge was estimated at 20 feet.

Bulgaria, Greece, Servia and Montenegro Combine To Enforce Certain Reforms in Macedonia

The outlook for war in the Balkans is such that all Europe is trembling. An outbreak of hostilities between the minor states involved directly in the controversy would probably involve Russia and Germany, and they in turn would involve the other great powers. Besides their natural hatred of Turkey and their desire to extend their territories, all the Balkan states, it is pointed out, have quarrels with Turkey arising out of the chronic disorder in Macedonia and Albania. It is a matter of general knowledge that there have been frequent outrages against the subjects of the Balkan states on Turkish territory, and along all the frontiers the guards have been at each other's throats at every opportunity. Each blamed the other for being the aggressor. Besides Servia's desire to annex the sanjak of Novibazar, Bulgaria, diplomats aver, wants a slice of Macedonia, Greece wishes for Crete and Montenegro has designs on Albania. All the four Balkan states have said they would be satisfied with the introduction of reforms in Macedonia. Turkey has promised reforms, but they have never materialized.

WILSON SEES HIGHER BEEF PRICES; URGES EATING MORE MUTTON.

"I see no hope of beef getting much cheaper," Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture said today, according to reports from Washington. Fresh from a vacation in the West, Wilson declared there was a much greater scarcity of cattle than he had realized.

"The breeding grounds of stock," said Wilson, "heretofore sent to the cornfield to be finished by fattening on corn, cannot furnish much more of that class of beef. Homesteaders have compelled ranchmen to dispose of their cattle stock.

"There is a supply of meat that people should become accustomed to eating—mutton. Mutton on the hoof is less than half the price of beef."

EXPERT SAYS U. S. STEEL ENSLAVES THE INDEPENDENTS

Julian Kennedy, in Pittsburg Federal Probe, Declares Outsiders Exist Only by Sufferance.

Independent steel plants, with a possible exception, exist only upon sufferance of the United States Steel Corporation, declared Julian Kennedy, consulting engineer of wide fame, on the witness stand yesterday at Pittsburg, in the suit of the Federal Government asking dissolution of the corporation.

He said the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company continues operation only because it is permitted by the corporation. He declared the Cambria plant at Johnstown could be rendered idle by a nod of the greater company. He excepted the Pennsylvania Steel Company from the list of independents overshadowed by United States Steel.

Kennedy, in his testimony, said he knew nothing about transportation, that his business chiefly was mill construction, but that in his experience he found that since the incorporation of the steel combine many mills have suffered. He was asked if the Jones & Laughlin concern interfered much with the business of the company. He replied in the negative.

C. A. Severance, of St. Paul, identified with a law firm previously retained by the Government, attorney for the defense, led the cross-examination. Kennedy said the United States Steel corporation is not transgressing upon competitors now, and that during the career of the corporation and its subsidiary companies, several plants, independent in every way, have been erected. He was especially strong in the assertion that structural steel work had been on the increase the last five years and that the American Bridge Company business in the last three years had fallen off. He said outsiders evidently were going into the erection business on a madcap scale, and that it was surprising to note outsiders were building bridges and furnishing building material cheaper than the big corporation.

COUNTY REPUBLICAN BODY MEETS SATURDAY, UNIONTOWN

New Campaign Regulations to be Adopted; Connellsville's Representation of 14 to be Present.

BULLSKIN BALKS AT WAGES FOR ROAD WORK, WHICH HALTS

State Notifies Connellsville Supervisors' Head to Discontinue in Township.

A new phase of the labor scarcity in the coke region developed today, when Secretary Jay Davis, of the Connellsville township road supervisors, who was instructed by officials of the State Highway Department to improve the Mt. Pleasant State highway, extending through Connellsville township and into Bullskin township, was ordered to discontinue work in the latter township. It is said Davis was paying higher wages than those paid by the Bullskin township supervisors and that the latter could not obtain laborers.

Davis said he expected to begin work, today, on improving the Swaugertown road with the appropriation of $450 recently received from the State and which is to be expended on permanent improvements. A large force of men is to be put to work.

Hetzel Hearing on Charge of Threat to Kill, Scheduled This Afternoon.

The solicitor said the offense, alleged by Dull, was committed more than a year ago and that defense of a case of that nature was not included in his duties as solicitor.

The Hetzel hearing was scheduled for this afternoon before Justice of the Peace Boyle at Uniontown, from whom Dull secured his warrant. At 11 o'clock this morning, Chief Hetzel said he had not retained an attorney.

MORGAN, ON STAND, SAYS HE SUBSCRIBED $150,000 FOR PEOPLE

Money King Testifies as to Republican Committee Donations in 1904.

RAISES VOICE AS WITNESS

Emphatically Declares, However, Contributions to National Campaign Fund Given Without Expectations of Return in Any Form.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Facing a Senatorial inquisition for the first time in his long career of money king, J. Pierpont Morgan told the Clapp committee, today, his $150,000 contributions to the 1904 Republican war chest were made for the good of the people and with no expectation of return. Morgan's assumption of the role of philanthropist came as the climax of a long series of questions as to the various financial and railroad interests which contributed to the Republican fund.

"I want it distinctly understood," the financier finally declared, raising his voice above the ordinary conversational tone in which he had been testifying, "that J. P. Morgan & Company never made a single subscription with any promise or expectation of any return; but only that they deemed it advantageous to the country and the people. We never had applications from any candidate, and we only subscribed for the good of the people and the country. We never got any return and never expected any. We were all in harmony; it was necessary for the good of the country. We never expected any return, and we never got any, either," he repeated.

Morgan said he made two separate contributions, one of $100,000 on October 24, 1904, and on November 1, $50,000. The last-named was donated, he testified, because of the necessities of the New York State situation.

"Was there any intention to support the Democratic nominee?" he was asked.

"If I'd thought it better for the country," replied Morgan, "I'd have done it."

Morgan said he understood Cornelius Bliss, former Governor O'Dell of New York, and Chairman Cortelyou of the 1904 National Committee, were trying to raise an additional fund of $250,000, the amount of the Harriman fund, in November, 1904; but that $50,000 was all he could afford. Morgan contributed $30,000 to the 1908 Republican coffers.

The financier emphatically denied there was ever any combination of Wall street interests in politics. He admitted frequent conferences at which politics were discussed, with E. H. Harriman, President Mellen, of the New Haven railroad and others, including his partner, George W. Perkins, then head of the Equitable Life Insurance Company. The money baron took pains to make it understood he never expected returns. He said he may have thought of being benefitted, but he followed this with the critical observation that "gratitude is a scarce commodity, I have found." He said the Republicans sent Bliss to him when they wanted money.

When asked why Cortelyou visited him, he said, "I suppose he came for more money," and grinned at the remark Morgan was sworn by Senator Clapp, chairman of the committee. "John Pierpont Morgan, 219 Madison avenue, New York; banker," was his first statement.

"On the second of September there appeared in the New York Evening Times, a statement by Charles Edward Russell, 'I now charge Roosevelt commanded that J. Pierpont Morgan raise $100,000 more in 1904,'" said Clapp. Clapp read Russell's statement in full, which said Morgan had talked over the telephone to Washington for half an hour, and including the statement that Morgan called Roosevelt that "d— fool in the White House."

"Do you recall a visit with Wayne MacVeigh," Clapp asked.

"I do not," said Morgan.

"Did you ever talk to President Roosevelt over the telephone?"

"I never talked with Roosevelt so far as I can remember," said Morgan, "and the circumstance regarding the telephone conversation is absolutely of whole cloth. I never had any communication by mail, telephone or telegraph with President Roosevelt at the White House."

"Did you contribute to the Republican campaign in 1904?"

"In October, I contributed $100,000, and on the first of November, $40,000 additional."

"Did you contribute more?"

"No, not that I know of."

"To whom did you make these contributions?"

"I assume to Mr. Bliss. I do not recall the actual payments but my records show it that way. The payments were made immediately."

"Did Harriman solicit contributions?"

"I don't think he ever made any solicitation to me. The first solicitation was by Bliss. I don't know who made the second, but I think it came," and Morgan studied for a time, "well, Bliss was one of them. O'Dell was another. My impression is that the money was paid to the National Committee but that a good deal of the $50,000 went to New York to O'Dell.

The hearing then adjourned to tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

UNCLE SAM BIGGEST BUILDER.

Government Survey Strives to Erect Only Fireproof Structures.

The erection of about $20,000,000 worth of buildings every year makes the United States Government the country's largest builder. The buildings of the United States, mints, courts, postoffices, revenue offices and others, have an estimated value of between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000.

The Government makes every effort to put up buildings that will not burn. To obtain the highest degree of safety, the United States Geological Survey has made elaborate tests to determine what materials best resist fire.

The War College in Washington is an example of fire protection achieved by Government methods. The Chicago postoffice is another. The Bureau of American Republics, Pension Office, Congressional Library and Marine Barracks also are considered models as to fireproof construction.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OILOR SALTS, BUT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Give Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels a Thorough Cleansing Without Gripe or Nausea—Ends Headache, Biliousness, Indigestion and Constipation.

(Advertisement.)

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and gentle—no griping. It is delicious—no dreading. It is positive and prompt—no waiting.

If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases your head aches, or you are bilious, nervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs to-night, and in the morning all constipated waste, sourbile, gases and poisons will move on and out of the system, gently but thoroughly—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. In the old days people let these matters run until they needed a large dose of physic, then they took something severe, like castor oil, salts or cathartics, that meant abuse to the bowels. These are the days of the gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. This way you are not drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often meant to deceive you. Refuse such with contempt.

THAT IS, something is wrong with baby, but we can't tell just what it is. All mothers recognize the term by the lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, inclination to sleep, heavy breathing, and lack of interest shown by baby. These are the symptoms of sickness. It may be fever, congestion, worms, croup, diphtheria, or scarlatina. Do not lose a minute. Give the child Castoria. It will start the digestive organs into operation, open the pores of the skin, carry off the fœtid matter, and drive away the threatened sickness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

WHY DON'T YOU TAKE BETTER CARE OF YOUR HAIR!

Don't let it turn grey. Don't let the Dandruff get a foothold and start the hair falling out.

It's not natural that young women should have thin grey hair that they cannot dress becomingly.

It should always be natural-colored—luxuriant—full of life and radiance—free from ugly grey hairs and annoying Dandruff.

Nature intended that a woman's hair should be one of her chief attractions.

Why not help her to keep it so?

PROGRESIVE HYPOCRISY.

The Senatorial Campaign Fund Expenditures Committee is the center of political attraction these blustering Bull Moose days. The Progressive witnesses are picturesque, entertaining, instructive. The players are inclined to criticise Manager Clapp's program, but the public is highly edified and would not on any account have the bill changed. In short, the Clapp circus has made a hit.

The Gold Brick merchant's happy stunt has been succeeded by a very correct imitation of the defiance of the Bull Moose, standing at bay on his native heath before the guns of the hunters, by Joseph Merryman Dixon, a sorry Senatorial jest from the mountain State of Montana. Joe's breezy western manners threatened a jolly mixup from time to time. At one stage of the proceedings, he was invited outside by the Senator from Ohio, but he didn't like the tone of the invitation, and stayed discreetly and safely on the inside. He is a true disciple of the lion-hearted jungle hunter. He is a brave bluffer.

Senator Dixon forgot his Senatorial courtesy and accused the committee of unfairness because it had not investigated the campaign finances of Taft and Wilson before taking up the Roosevelt receipts and expenditures, overlooking or ignoring the fact that the program of the committee had been laid out by Chairman Clapp, a pronounced Progressive, without any suggestions from any other member. In the course of his testimony, which was largely a harangue, he repeatedly shouted that Roosevelt was not getting a Square Deal and voiced other accusations of like character with such violent persistence as to rouse the suspicion that he was merely paving the way for the bellow of the great Bull Moose who is to come.

The latter will need all his breath. The information that is tumbling forth just now will require a great deal of explaining in view of the brave words with which the Colonel has been denying and denouncing statements daring to associate his spotless political robes with the foul contagion of contact with Predatory Wealth and the tainted money of the Unspeakable Trusts.

George R. Sheldon, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee in 1908, testified that he then had access to the books of his predecessor, Cornelius N. Bliss, and that over 70% of the campaign contributions of 1904 came from corporations, that the Harriman fund of $240,000 was used in New York State alone; that the Standard Oil Company, Henry C. Frick, J. P. Morgan & Co. and George J Gould were credited on the books with having given $100,000 each to the Roosevelt national campaign fund in that year. Senator Dixon admitted having received and expended about $95,000 in 1912. To this fund, George W. Perkins, Frank A. Munsey and Dan R. Hanna contributed $25,000 each. Together with the $141,000 spent by William Flinn and the $154,000 handled by National Progressive Treasurer Hooker, this makes a total known expenditure thus far of $570,000 for boosting the unworthy Third Term ambitions of a political power who seeks place and power in the name of patriotism and progress.

That political cause which the good citizen conceives to be the best for the country and himself he is influenced to support, not only with his vote but also with his money. Money is necessary for legitimate political expenses and in a Presidential campaign much money is required. The contributors who gave largely in 1904, 1908 and 1912 gave according to their means. Their contributions were not more sinful than the poor man's mite.

If there is any taint attached to campaign funds it lies in their expenditure, not in their voluntary gift; and in Roosevelt's case, it seems that there were no strings to the biggest offerings, notably Harriman's $240,000; if there were, the strings pulled out or broke shortly after the election, for it is now a matter of record that Harriman's recommendations received small consideration.

There was, therefore, nothing necessarily criminal, or even reprehensible, in the large campaign contributions of 1904 mentioned above, and they are mentioned only to prove the hypocrisy of Colonel Roosevelt and to convict him of trifling with the truth when on numerous occasions he has denied his political angels and sought each time to pin real feathers on his shoulders and fix a halo of righteousness above his head.

"One may smile and smile and be a villian still." Is just as true today as it was in the Bard of Avon's time.

GOOD TRUSTS AND BAD TRUSTS.

The testimony before the Steel Probe Committee indicates that it is pretty hard for the Steel Corporation to please everybody, particularly its competitors. No less a personage than Julian Kennedy, engineer and metallurgist, furnaceman and coke manufacturer, expert in mine and mill construction, gives it as his opinion that the independent steel manufacturers of Western Pennsylvania exist only upon the sufferance of the United States Steel Corporation, which would be able at any time to crush them.

The complete testimony of this witness is not at hand, and the accounts of the daily press are unsatisfactory epitomies, but we gather that the Steel Corporation is credited with this extraordinary power because of its very completely fortified position with respect to raw materials, it having been the corporation's policy to own and operate its coal mines and coke ovens, its ore mines and furnaces, and to some extent its transportation facilities. It is thus undoubtedly able to manufacture cheaper than the independent concerns; on the other hand, it has larger overhead charges than most of its competitors.

Assuming, however, that the Steel Corporation would in times of curtailed demand for steel products be able to undersell the independent operators, and thus force them to withdraw from the market and close down their mills, it would seem very much to its credit that it has always evinced a contrary disposition. Its policy has been a fair division of the business at fair prices to the end that there shall be fair profits to the manufacturer and fair cost to the consumer.

There has been much talk of Good Trusts and Bad Trusts, but judged by this standard of fairness the Steel Corporation has been a Good Trust. If all Trusts would model their conduct on a spirit of absolute fairness much of the criticism against them would be silenced.

Those who don't will doubtless feel the heavy hand of Government Regulation.

Jesse Hook Wise advises us that he has lost faith in Gold Brick Bill's sincerity as a Progressive. Some of T. Roosevelt's campaign managers have been insinuating things about William for some time.

Sneak thieves swarm over Connellsville, working the houses of their victims from the front door, the back porch, or the roof as fancy may suggest or expediency dictate. Burgess Evans should organize a burglar hunt.

The disturbances in Servia may be accounted for in the fact that it is a Balkan kingdom.

Greenwood's taxable status seems to be still in doubt. Consolidation and expansion bring some complicated mathematical problems, but they should be met in a spirit of equity and fairness.

It is the right of any member of the Town Council to have any bill, presented for payment with the favorable recommendation of the Finance Committee, read in detail and debated in open meeting; but it is not a parliamentary custom to read the items unless they are demanded, nor is it necessary.

Violations of the game laws by aliens and others are reported to be unusually numerous. All good citizens should aid and encourage the wardens in their efforts to uphold the law.

The Montana miners struck pending the signing of a new wage scale which was understood to be satisfactory. The miners evidently wanted a few days rest.

The question whether Rotten Eggs are Pure Food may trouble the technical mind, but the practical housewife is not embarrassed with doubt.

Connellsville's public schools are rowing some in spite of the necessity of fumigating them every few days.

The Connellsville basketball salary limit has been lowered. This looks more like safe financing than any previous action of the association.

Some of the flood damage claims presented to the Town Council may be valid in certain contingencies, but most of them have no legal foundation, and they should not be encouraged to bloom into lawsuits.

IF WILSON WINS.

Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

When a patient is recovering and becoming stronger every day it is foolish to change doctors.

It is risky business to change horses in mid stream.

It is a serious matter to revolutionize the economic system of a great industrial nation.

That, however, is what Dr. Wilson proposes to do.

He proposes to cut out protection, which he declares to be a cancer and his platform denounces as unconstitutional.

This, too, in spite of the fact that every European country except two levies Protective Tariffs.

The exceptions are Great Britain and Belgium, in which labor is notably underpaid and there is widespread oppression and discontent.

Pennsylvania Republicans have a particular duty to perform in this crisis, because our State has more at stake than any other.

If Republicans vote for Roosevelt that means half a vote for Wilson, and if they vote for Wilson that means a declaration against the Protective Tariff.

If by any possibility Pennsylvania should give its electoral vote to Wilson it is certain that the Democratic representation from this State in Congress would be increased.

Congress would place but one interpretation upon such an outcome.

It would be taken to indicate that Pennsylvania industries no longer desire or require Protective duties, but were ready to compete on even terms with the poorly paid labor of Europe.

No protest that any manufacturer could make, no appeal that any labor union could present would have any effect.

There would be immediate downward revision followed, as a logical and unavoidable sequence, by reductions in wages.

Pennsylvania would thus be compelled to pay an enormous price, in the workshop, on the farm and in every branch of business, for Roosevelt's candidacy and Wilson's election.

But if President Taft is re-elected trade, development and production will go on undisturbed, with prosperity unimpaired, save by such fluctuations as are consequent upon the operation of natural laws.

MINE SAFETY WORK.

By Bureau of Mines.

The first national mine safety demonstration which was held at Pittsburg recently under the auspices of the Bureau of Mines, the American Red Cross and the Pittsburg Coal Operators' Association is described in a bulletin just issued by the Bureau of Mines. The purpose of the bulletin as explained by its author, H. M. Wilson, Engineer in Charge of the Pittsburg Experiment Station, is to encourage further life saving in the mines by explaining the demonstration for the benefit of those who could not be present. He says:

"In lending its support to public demonstrations of first-aid and rescue work the Bureau of Mines has in view the encouragement of methods and appliances best adapted to prevention accidents and to increasing safety in mines. Prompt treatment of injuries by persons skilled in first-aid methods reduces the mine's loss of time by about 90 per cent. There is a corresponding saving in wages to the worker and a reduction of damages or compensation to the operator. Where mine operators take an interest in and encourage first-aid work a better feeling develops between the worker and his employer, resulting in improved hospital and sanitary arrangements, improved living and housing conditions, and the general advancement of the mining industry.

"Experience indicates that the best results are effected by training in first-aid work at least one mine worker in every ten. This precaution insures the presence near the place of accident of enough first-aid men to give prompt treatment. Public exhibits and contests stimulate the interest of miners in organizing a first-aid corps and keep them prepared to render the most effective service. Such exhibits and contests have for several years been held annually by the various coal companies and groups of coal companies in the anthracite region, and within the last year they have been held by the employes in various other coal-mining sections. The national mine-safety demonstrations was conceived as a means of further stimulating such interest and as an object lesson to those who had not adopted first-aid instruction or instruction in the use of artificial breathing devices and life-saving apparatus.

"Those who attended the demonstration will understand that the Bureau of Mines is prepared to render to States or to mining companies such advice or assistance as may be necessary to establish local life-saving, fire-fighting, and first-aid corps. This bulletin is published as a further means to this end, in order that their attention attracted to the bureau and its purpose. Mine owners, mine operators, inspectors, and miners are invited to call freely upon the bureau for advice and suggestion as to mine safety. It is the hope of the bureau that in the course of time each coal-mining State may have one or more mine-safety cars or stations which, after the manner of those provided by State of Illinois, will become local centers for rescue operations and for the instruction and organization of similar private stations at the mines."

MISS MILLER BECOMES MRS. WM. RICHARDSON IN SCOTTDALE CHURCH

Handsome Appointments Mark Wedding of Popular Scottdale Girl.

A MAGNIFICENT BRIDAL PARTY

Daughter of Chief Engineer of Frick Company Weds Former Scottdale Man, Now of Birmingham; Lovely Reception Follows Ceremony.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Oct. 3.—The marriage of Carrie Mae Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. K. Miller, to William Richardson, Jr., a church event of last evening, was one of the handsomest weddings ever solemnized in this section, and was followed by an elaborate reception at the Miller home. The ceremony was solemnized in the First Baptist church of which the family are members, and the officiating clergyman was the Rev. William G. Russell, the pastor, who was assisted by the Rev. John W. Moody, formerly a pastor of the local church and now at Finleyville. The appointments that characterized the wedding and reception were surpassingly beautiful.

The church was filled with beautifully gowned women and other guests with the large wedding party, and the riot of floral decorations made the event one of the loveliest of its kind.

While the guests were assembling in the church, Lyman H. Fuller, the organist, rendered the "Elevation in B Flat," "Intermezzo in E" and "Traumerei." Mrs. A. C. Schiller of Pittsburg was the vocalist, and she alternated with the organist in the music before the ceremony, singing "Beloved 'Tis Morn," "All For You," and "O, Promise Me." During the ceremony the organist played "Con Amore." The bridal party entered to Mendelssohn's and left the church after the ceremony to Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus. The church platform was trimmed with low tropical plants and at the base were banks of ferns. Two tall white standards filled with white lillies were at each end of the platform and at the two extreme ends of the auditorium were high mounds of ferns and palms. The pews reserved for the immediate families were marked off with standards of white flowers and the aisles with white ropes.

The bridesmaids entered in couples from the vestry and proceeded up the left aisle to the rear of the church, falling in right after the ushers, when all formed a procession up the right aisle. The bridesmaids were followed by the maid or honor, then the two flower girls, then the bride leaning on the arm of her father, her train held by the little page, the bride meeting the bridegroom and his best man at the altar.

The bride was gowned in charmeuse satin, with duchess lace and pearl, and carried lillies of the valley and orchids. She wore a duchess lace veil with orange blossoms. Her mother's gown was yellow duchess satin with point lace.

The ring ceremony was used and the bride was given away by her father. Mr. Richardson had for his best man his brother, Charles E. Richardson of Selma, North Carolina, while the bride had for her maid of honor, Miss Genevieve Kerfoot of Kearneysville, West Virginia. Miss Kerfoot wore a pink satin gown and pink chiffon hair ornaments and carried pink and white chrysanthemums with shower.

The eight bridesmaids were Miss Nannie Richardson of Selma, N. C.; Miss Betty Neff of Masontown, Miss Irene McWilliams, Miss Ruth Jenika, Miss Pauline Miller, Miss Mabel Russell, Miss Jessie Brown, and Miss Jesse Smith of Scottdale. They were gowned in lace robes over mousseline, wore pink chiffon hair ornaments and carried pink chrysanthemums with shower.

Dorothy Miller and Meredith Stauffer, the flower girls, wore white lace dresses and bore pink and white rosebuds, and Jack Miller was the page. The ushers were M. E. Weeks and Dr. Thomas Atkinson of Philadelphia; James D. Armstrong of Uniontown, and James D. Sherrick, Clyde Newcomer, Eugene Miller, Frank Miller and Charles S. Hall, all of Scottdale.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, on Chestnut street. Here the decorations like those of the church, were magnificently carried out, from the porches, screened in southern smilax to the interior of the house. The library was decorated with banks of palms and white chrysanthemums, the tea table with a centerpiece of pink chrysanthemums and pink ribbon. In the windows of the diningroom were suspended minature electric lamps, capped with pink shades and showers of vining asparagus, and below a group of plants, creating a beautiful garden effect. On the table was a centerpiece of pink and white Killarney roses and maidnes, and the chandelier was a lovely shower of asparagus and pink wisteria. Suspended from this were dainty wedding bells of pure white.

The living room had been arranged as a reception room and it was decorated in palms, ferns and pink chrysanthemums. In the breakfast room the chandelier was trimmed with vining asparagus, while the sideboard was banked with ferns and the table flowers forming the centerpiece were of pink dahlias.

The Millers are of the older families of town, Mr. Miller being the chief engineer of the H. C. Frick Coke Company. His daughter, the bride of last evening, was educated at Wilson College, Chambersburg, and has been one of the popular society girls of this section. She gave her attendants sterling silver shoe buckles, while Mr. Richardson gave his best man and the ushers stick pins. He is a graduate of the A. M. & C. College and by profession a mechanical engineer. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson of Selma, N. C., and he spent some years here, being in the employ of the Frick company. Following the reception the couple left for Washington, D. C., to go from there to their southern home in Birmingham.

Among the out of town guests present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynch, Greensburg; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Anwait, Mr. and Mrs. William Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Coble, Mr. and Mrs. William Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. William Normeentt, Mrs. A. C. PROMPT COKE GOES TO $2.85 BECAUSE OF ITS SCARCITY

Operators Unwilling to Sell on Contract for Fourth Quarter Fearing

WEATHER WILL LIMIT OUTPUT

Contract Price for First Half in Doubt Figures Discussed Are $2 50 @$2 75 Increased Coke Consumption Expected Foundry Advances

From The Weekly Courier

PITTSBURG October 2.—The coke market has become quiet as to actual transactions on account of the existing scarcity in prompt coke and the prospect that this scarcity will continue. Today prompt furnace coke cannot be had at under $2.80 or $2.85 and there is very little to be picked up even at those figures. None of the operators is willing to sell on contract for the fourth quarter and that position is not judicial at all. It is concluded that if coke is so scarce now it would not be safe to take chances on making a contract for the quarter when the various cold weather exigencies are to be reckoned with. For the first half of the new year it is possible that contracts could be made at $2.50 but it is doubtful and many operators would probably not be tempted at less than $2.75.

It is generally suggested that the labor shortage is the condition most responsible for the present situation in coke and the question is whether this will improve when bad weather sets in and reduces the amount of outside work being done particularly highway work.

It is generally assumed that consumption of coke will increase during the next few months as while the steel works have been operating all their available blast furnaces there are a number of merchant furnaces out of blast which are likely to come in as soon as coke supplies can be arranged for. One such was scheduled to blow in yesterday but has not gone in and may not be able to blow in before the 10th of the month.

The market stands quotable as follows:

Prompt furnace	$2.80 @ $2.85
Contracts first half	$2.50 @ $2.75
Prompt foundry	$3.15 @ $3.25
Contract foundry	$2.80 @ $3.00

While the supply of coal cars has been fairly good the supply of box cars is not satisfactory and the shortage of labor for forking box cars is still more serious matter. This accounts for the advance in prompt foundry coke at a time when the current demand is not particularly increased.

The pig iron market has been advancing sharply. It is not quoted closely as sales are made at a given price rather than the pig iron makers their advance then make a notable market. Bessemer has sold in several instances at $1[illegible] Valley, involving a few large tonnages. This is an advance of $2.50 from the low point early in the year and $1 within the past fortnight. Basic advanced to $17, a proposition of 10,000 to 17,000 tons were made at $17 Valley and it is a question whether this price can be done again. The market is quotable approximately as follows: Bessemer $17.00@$17.50; Basic $17.00@$17.50; No. 2 foundry $17.00@$16.00 all f. o. b. Valley furnaces 90 cents higher delivered Pittsburg.

The September pig iron averages as compiled by a leading interest in the trade from actual sales of 1,000 tons and over are announced at $15.962 Valley for Bessemer and $15.134 Valley for basic representing gains from August of $1.428 for Bessemer and $1.144 for Basic.

STEEL AND IRON MARKET IN THE SELLERS' HANDS

Pig Advances and Steel Mills Have Orders Enough to Keep them Busy Until April 1

NEW YORK Oct. 2.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will say tomorrow morning:

The whole iron and steel market has gained strength in the past week partly through an enlargement in the trading in steel products for the new year and partly through further heavy advances in pig iron particularly in the Central West.

The mills are now so well filled with specifications for finished steel and see specifications coming in at such a rate that they regard it is settled already that they will have full operations until April 1st. To see with certainty six months ahead is all that has ever been claimed as feasible in this industry.

The unfinished steel situation has reached an acute stage. The mills have little if any unfinished steel to offer for this year's delivery and practically without exception they are refusing to name prices for the first quarter of next year. They suggest the probability that they will have less unfinished steel to spare for the market than usual their own finishing mills being so crowded while they point out also that they will have to carry over considerable tonnage from this year. While the latter situation covers consumers for an equal quantity of steel the position of the finishing mills dependent upon outside sources for steel is far from a comfortable one and this is particularly true of the sheet and tin plate mills since the market for next year was formally opened last week. The majority of these mills are pursuing a very conservative course as to sales for next year but this indeed the mills which make their steel are doing also. It is recognized that it is a seller's market.

CHAPTER XI.

After spending a day with a winsome woman reading Lucille, it is either the hand of Fate or the intentional prank of a witch that sends the same man canoeing with a decidedly pretty girl of the same name!

Lucille Walters was a leader at Vassar and popular at Squirrel Inn, where her personality was predominant and pleasing. To none but Jackie Vining need she yield the palm of favor and of attractiveness.

Upon Mayor Bedight Miss Walters tried all her wiles. In a sworn compact with the "Judge" she sought by every means in conformity with ladylight alluring to wring from him some little slip that would throw light upon his clandestine meetings—but Bedight baffled her at every clever thrust. She came home at night only to admit her defeat.

"He is charming—and decidedly adept at fencing," was the verdict Miss Walters rendered to her chaperone.

And on the pinnacle of this it happened!

Jackie Vining and Lucille Walters, star gazing, beheld the rascally Bedight enter the arbor. A half hour later the figure of a woman emerged from the trysting place. For a time the two stood in the arbor entrance. The arm of the mayor was about her. Then their lips met in a lingering caress and the girl glided across the lawn as on that other night when Jackie had beheld a like tableau. Undoubtedly the woman was one of them—but which one?

Miss Vining's anger and contempt for men in general and Bedight in particular ran high.

"But," protested Miss Walters, "perhaps his intentions are perfectly honorable and possibly right here under our noses a romance has budded and blossomed!"

"But—but—" protested the Honorable Jack, stopping herself just at the point of confessing what Bedight had said to her that night on the dock, "I—he said the girl was doing no harm—and—"

"Don't be silly, Jackie," pricked Miss Walters, "it isn't wrong to kiss one's sweetheart."

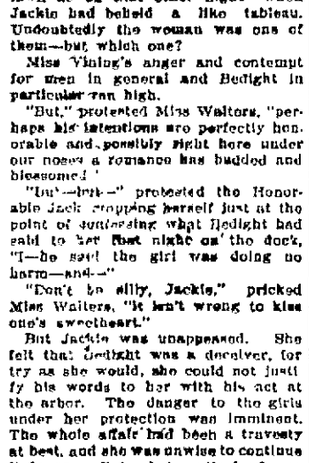

But Jackie was unappeased. She felt that Bedight was a deceiver, for try as she would, she could not justify his words to her with his act at the arbor. The danger to the girls under her protection was imminent. The whole affair had been a travesty at best, and she was unwise to continue it longer. But what method of procedure was best? Jackie thought seriously for an hour. Then she summoned an attendant from the office and gave him a message. Having done this she retired.

Mayor Bedight was still up at midnight when a woman glided down the hallway and tapped gently at his door. It was opened from within and the girl closed it behind her.

"Walter!" she cried, excitedly, "Jackie Vining has sent help to the sheriff. I just learned it. It's almost time for him to arrive. You must act quickly. The letter with the bill inside is still unsealed on her dresser. I tried to get it but failed. You must——"

"All right, Bess," replied the mayor, patting the girl on the shoulder. "I'll act—and I want to say right here that you're a trump card. It's up to your Uncle Dudley to buy you a new sealskin when we meet in Chicago."

The mayor was moving lively,

throwing his few effects into a suit case.

"I'm ready, Bess," he said hurriedly, "While I'm trying to turn this trick, you slip out and see if Briggs is waiting. It's an hour too soon, but he may be there. Good-by, little girl. Mum's the word," giving her a loving hug.

The mayor sped down the hall to Jackie Vining's room.

"Gad," he ejaculated, "this is a rum thing I've got to do—but everything is fair in love and politics—and this is both."

Taking a key from his pocket, Bedight slipped it softly into the door. The lock yielded. Cautiously he opened the door and entered the apartment of the "Judge." A high-low in candescent was burning with the dim light on, and in the glow Bedight's eyes surveyed the apartment carefully. As his eyes swept the room, he sought to locate two objects of intense interest—the dresser, on top of which was supposed to lie the letter containing the bill, and Jackie Vining! They were both in evidence, the one in the farther corner of the room, the other in her bed asleep, her round arms thrown upward about her face, her beautiful hair in a braid that fell across the white linen like a rope of gold. Beside the bed on a chair lay a pile of filmy lingerie, and on top of the heap a pair of black silk hose.

Bedight, fascinated, turned his face away. Even a political career would scarce excuse a man for such an intrusion.

"But she will never know," flashed through Bedight's mind as he slipped quietly across the room to the dresser. Yes, the package was there—and unsealed. Hastily slipping the envelope off, he tucked the bill away in his pocket. From a second pocket he brought out another manuscript and substituted this for the one he had lost on the morning of the run through the swamp. He did not read the letter, returning it with the manuscript to the envelope. Wetting the mucilage, he closed and sealed the letter and laid it back on the dresser. Turning to go, his eyes fell upon the face of the sleeper. How beautiful she was—and how unreasonable. For the merest second he hesitated opposite the lacy couch of my lady's dreams—but the moment was fatal.

By some strange freak of fate the high-low light, feeling an impulse of fresh current, automatically shifted from low to high. The brilliant glare fell directly in the girl's face. She stirred, opened her eyes and would have screamed but for Bedight's presence of mind. Springing forward, he spoke her name, muffling her startled ejaculation with his hand, gently laid across her lips.

And then as her eyes blazed like torches with their outraged fires, he dropped to his knees beside the bed and said hotly:

"You will never forgive me for this—and I do not blame you. But some day you will understand. I have done nothing at Squirrel Inn to make a gentleman blush for shame—except this—and—I had to do it. I thought I could—could say good-by without awakening you. I am going now. When first we met, you gave me a kiss—or if you please, I stole it. In going I am giving in return my heart, and taking as the sweetest memory of my life this last good-by!"

Bowing his head over the face of the half stupefied girl, he touched his lips to hers reverently—and slipped from the room.

As he did so a piercing shriek arose. The "Judge" was coming to her own. It was answered from below.

Bedight, scudding along the hall, heard the answering cry and knew the sheriff had arrived. Exit from the hotel by way of the staircase was out of the question. He darted to Bess Winters's room, tried the door and breathed a sigh of relief as it yielded. From the room a veranda opened and from the floor of the veranda to the ground was not too much of a drop for an agile man. Bedight hung for a moment on the rail. Then he let go, landing almost in the arms of an officer, evidently more surprised than the mayor, who, quicker of action, pushed the deputy headlong and fled from the scene with speed that would do credit to Jackie Vining.

Down the gravel walk sped Bedight, toward the main road. Already the officer had regained his feet and given the alarm. The mayor heard a call for help, a hurried explanation, and then footfalls in pursuit. Down the road he ran toward the shadows of the trees along the highway.

If Briggs was there and ready, he would get away in time. Something loomed black in the shadows ahead. It was the car! Bedight called as he ran—but Briggs was too surprised to heed.

"Crank the car!" cried the mayor excitedly, dashing up to the machine.

But the pursuers were upon them as the bewildered Briggs sprang to the wheel. The mayor turned and struck blindly at the sheriff in the lead, whirled and sprang into the machine. The motor aroused instantly and shot ahead, leaving the enraged pursuers powerless in the road.

CHAPTER XII.

It was 10 o'clock on the evening of the election in Ossian. About the headquarters of Walter Bedight the followers of the victorious representative were clamoring for their chosen leader—and among the voters were innumerable women who had fought shoulder to shoulder with their brothers at the ballot box.

Mrs. Holcomb, the president of the Allied Women's clubs, followed by a bevy of workers, passed through the crowd and sent in her card. The door was opened to admit them.

Bedight came graciously forward, a smile of welcome upon his face.

"Congratulations, Mr. Bedight," said Mrs. Holcomb, "and let me introduce Miss Vining, of Epworth."

Bedight had not seen her until then, but as his eyes fell upon her his heart leaped as the dry grasses to the shower, as the laughing water to the sunshine. He held out his hand.

"We have met before, thank you, Mrs. Holcomb," she said, the roses mounting to her cheeks, and then the crowd surged in.

"Please don't go," he whispered eagerly to Jackie as he turned to grasp the outstretched hands.

And even as he murmured his thanks to the congratulatory constituency, he pressed a button upon his desk. An attendant answered. He whispered a message, still pressing the hands that met his. The attendant slipped hurriedly away. In a moment the door to a private room opened and Bess Winters flew toward Jackie Vining.

"You dear!" she cried with both arms about the "Judge's" neck—"but I've a confession to make. It was I that Walter met in the arbor. He is my half brother. It was such a lark, and——"

But Miss Vining's face had grown suddenly radiant.

"You awful, awful, trouble-maker!" she whispered, hiding her face against Bess' fair head.

"And that night," breathed Bess as Jackie's face grew scarlet, "Walter went to your room and substituted another bill in favor of woman suffrage for the one opposing it. You mailed it next day! And it turned the tide for him!"

"Oh!" was Miss Vining's not altogether elucidating comment.

"Come into the private office," urged Bess.

An hour later Bedight tore himself

Bedight Hung for a Moment on the Rail.

away from his friends and found them there.

"Excuse me a moment," said the ever tactful Bess, disappearing into the front office. "Somebody's got to do the honors."

Bedight stood facing the girl, who had arisen.

"Can you forgive me?" he pleaded, his eyes striving to gain hers, which were downcast, while the color painted her cheeks as glowing as the pink of a seashell.

"You promised," she said deliberately, raising her eyes to his, "to abide by the decision of the court. If you transgressed you were to be fined for life. As 'Judge' of the court, I pronounce you guilty. You may—kiss me again—if you like—for at last I am willing to admit that you were and are 'a woman's logical candidate.'"

He drew her to him with a reverential tenderness that thrilled her, and as their lips met in betrothal, the campaign band outside the office struck up the air:

"The Moonlight, the Rose and You."

(THE END.)

Day Set for Marriages.

Visitors to the quaint old city of Plougastel, in Brittany, are struck with the fact that all marriages are solemnized in a single day of the year. Why this unusual custom prevails is easily explained. The men are all fishermen, many of them going as far as the Newfoundland banks, and are at home only during a few months in the winter. One day in early February is set apart for the weddings. Little courting is done, but much haggling over the dowry of the girls. They have to bring a certain quantity of linen, chickens, pigs, and vegetables. Frequently a match is broken off because a father refuses to add a sack of potatoes to the dowry. On the day set the inhabitants of the entire region go to Plaugastel. The whole population goes to church to hear mass, to take communion. Often 60 or more couples are united on the same day. Bride and bridegroom do not walk together until the ceremony has been completed.

Real Wedding Feast.

The wedding of Abis Horourts, the fifteen-year old son of the Rabbi at Mielec, with Fraulin Teindel Weiss, who is just seventeen, took place the other day, at the house of the latter's father in Szaplonczn, in Hungary. Four thousand guests were invited to the wedding banquet, which was spread in the open air and lasted with intervals for dancing for twenty-four hours. The provisions prepared were sufficient to victual a liner, and included 6 cwt. of beef, 2½ cwt. of veal, 4¾ cwt. of fish, 1,120 fowls, 120 geese, 36 turkeys, 1 cwt. of almonds, 2 cwt. of sugar, 1¼ tons of flour. The company consumed in drink 150 gallons of red wine, 220 gallons of white wine, 300 gallons of beer, and over 200 of brandy.

A Potato Collection.

Potatoes are used for other than feeding purposes. A writer in Notes and Queries recently recorded the case of a man who has filled a cabinet "with a series of small wrinkled objects which look and feel like large pebbles." They are not pebbles, however, but potatoes, which have become petrified by being carried a long time in the pocket. Each potato is marked with a small label bearing an inscription such as "Carried from Nov. 12, 1888, to May 18, 1890. Very efficacious." The collector claims that the potato carried in the trousers pocket has proved to be the best of the many remedies he has tried for rheumatism. He carries a potato until the return of the twinges seems to testify to the decline of its curative properties. Then he takes a new potato and locks the old one up in his cabinet.—London Chronicle.

YOU'RE BILIOUS! YOUR LIVER AND BOWELS ARE INACTIVE---"CASCARETS"

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and constipated bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel cheerful and bully for months.

Don't forget your children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too, occasionally.

THREE NEW MEN OUT FOR LOCAL FOOTBALL SQUAD

Scrimmage Scheduled This Afternoon in Preparation for Game With Irwin, Saturday.

Three new men, Showman and Goodwin, Juniors, and Dixon, freshman, reported at the Connellsville High School football practise yesterday afternoon. There was a long signal practise, and further work in new plays and formations. There were 30 men out and the practise was one of the best, both in point of attendance and work, of the season.

A scrimmage was scheduled for this afternoon, and probably tomorrow afternoon. The team is being rounded into shape for the game with Irwin High here, Saturday. The game last season, with Irwin was one of the closest played by Connellsville, and was won by a score of 9-0. The Irwin team this year, is composed largely of the same men as last.

MEYERSDALE TO FORCE WATER COMPANY TO PAY FOR GRANT

Borough Council Insists Upon Financial Returns From Franchise to Concern.

Special to The Courier

MEYERSDALE, Oct. 3.—The contract between the Sand Spring Water Company and the Borough of Meyersdale expired Oct. 1. Under the contract, the Borough paid $500 a year for fire protection, and received nothing in return for the franchise.

At the last regular meeting of Council representatives of the company were present, having been summoned to show what right the company had for doing business in the Borough. Some members of Council went so far as to doubt the existence of a franchise. This the company insisted it can and will show in the proper time. It appears certain the company must "come through," and to this end the Water Committee of Council was instructed to confer with a committee of the company.

THE SOISSON.

"FRECKLES."

"Freckles," Gene Stratton-Porter's most popular and best selling novel apparently possesses that magic quality that brings fortune to everyone connected with it. The sale of the book has reached half a million copies and it is still one of the six best sellers, which means that it has earned a fortune for Mrs. Porter and Doubleday, Page & Co., and Grosset & Dunlap, the publishers.

Manager A. G. Delamater was so well pleased with Neil Twomey's dramatization of the story that he has commissioned Mr. Twomey to dramatize two other popular novels of which he controls the dramatic rights. This will undoubtedly bring fame and fortune to Mr. Twomey, judging by the liberal patronage and the extravagant praise given it by the dramatic critics. It is sure to coin another good sized fortune for its producer, Mr. Delamater. At the Soisson Monday, October 7.

Brenlin Window Shades

—Look much better, last longer!

The success of your windows depends on the shades. If you furnish them with shades of Brenlin, good taste and economy can go hand in hand. Brenlin shades not only look much better, but last longer. They are made without the "filling" that causes other shades to streak, wrinkle, fade and show unsightly "pin holes." They always hang straight and smooth, and really shade. And they outlast the ordinary shade several times over, yet cost but a trifle more.

BRENLIN is made in many artistic tones and in Brenlin Duplex—colored one side, white the other. Come in and let us show you samples and quote prices.
